Jerry Sharp posted:

Johnny was my hero brother by the time I got old enough to know much he was gone from mom and dad's house chasing his life's dreams but I remember well when he would come home for a few days it was a celebration he was charismatic witty and had that magnetic personality Johnny had a great love for sports and excelled in all he participated in he had a full life but the most important thing I will always remember that in the latter days of his life God allowed Johnny to spend some precious time with my sister Marie and she help lead Johnny to the foot of the cross to find and accept Jesus as his Lord and savior he main have found his way to the vineyard late in life but there he found his eternal reward. He always called me his baby brother and I was and he sure was my hero. Jerry Sharp
