29 years ago, GOD blessed us with a child with special needs who taught us about life. It was a roller coaster of many difficulties. Kallie became the teacher, and all others were her students. Kallie taught us to love unconditionally with no limits. Whatever life brought her way she faced it head-on. Her life was filled with many struggles, but she fought these battles until the end. Kallie has given us a world of trust and understanding and loving the world as it should be with no restraints. She leaves this earth of a body that would not do as she wanted and a mind that saw the world differently than we all did. Her wheelchair has been left behind for her to walk with our heavenly father to have a body free from all restraints. Sweet Kallie is in the arms of Jesus, and she

Kallie you were an inspiration to me from the 1st day that I met you... You did not let that wheelchair or anything else define you or hold you back.... You may have had limited communication skills but you sure knew how to get your point across... If anyone ever upset you, you knew how to let them know about it... You Momma said it best when she said that you were the Teacher and everyone that ever met you were your students.... Thanks for teaching me not to give up and be humble and kind... Until we meet again sweet Angel... Love you...Prayers for your family

I saw a dragonfly out the window this morning and remembered the smile on your face as you watch them fly by. I always wondered what you thought of them. How amazing there beautiful and vibrant colors. You would laugh at them when they flew to close to you and sometimes, they would scare you and make you jump. When I see a dragonfly, I will think of you of how you fly with wings of gold and can fly high as the breeze will lift you.to the sky. All the beautiful and brilliant colors are the happiness you brought to my life. Fly away my little dragonfly and lift off into heavens flight.10/17/2022 written for Kallie (Love Momma)
