“ My other mom....I would give anything for you to get onto me again! To tell me you love me more again. To tell me to get my butt up and come snap peas again. To go riding in the car listening to your country music again. To go on our trips to beach and lake and camp out again. To just being around you knowing you have always done the best you could for me even if you had little you always cared for and protected me....even from your “other daughter” MH. As I woke up thinking of you this morning all those memories came to mind and so many more. Rip my other mom. God loves you more now so he took you out of your pain and to a better place. I will always love you and help keep your memory alive as long as I live.

“ I have tons and tons of memories with Momma Sharon. She helped raised me for years growing up. I knew I always had a place in her home anytime and in her heart!! She was a pistol like me & raised the sweetest people I know Cassie and Melissa. Every time I saw her she smiled with joy like a I was her own I basically lived with her, Cassie and Melissa. I remember many days swimming in the lake and playing cars in her 5 speed small car she had. Sure do love the memories I have of her raising a stubborn child like me. I love you Sharon and I know one day I will see you again.
